

Do the festival in style this year

Sure, the Cheltenham Literature Festival is glamorous, but sometimes all that excitement can take its toll. WEEKEND takes a look at ways to cope

You'll be spoiled for choice in

Montpellier Walk. Just a few doors away from Frere Jacques there's Gusto, which also serves fine coffee, and is handily positioned for the festival tents that spring up in nearby Imperial Gardens.

If peckish while you're there – it's also a top-class Italian deli, where owner Gavin Thomson, pictured, will be able to serve you with something to sustain you through the day.
